NEW STATEMENT BY BRYAN

VICTORY IS WON FOR PEACE CAUSE, W. J. DECLARES

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—William Jennings Bryan, in a new statement this afternoon, claimed a victory for his peace ideals as indicated by the new attitude which he says has been taken by the press of the country.

He also approved a suggestion that the voters of the United States decide whether the nation should go to war, and that those who vote for war first go to the front. Mr. Bryan's statement reads

PRESS CHANGES TONE.

"I am glad to note the change in the tone of the press in regard to the note to Germany. From the time the papers began to publish forecasts down to yesterday the jingo editors have been predicting that the matter would be dealt with with "great firmness"; that Germany would be told that there must be no more delay in the acceptance of this country's demand, etc. Instead of waiting until the note was issued, they put their own construction upon it in advance and colored it to suit their own purposes.

"It is a relief to find the papers now emphasizing the friendly tone of the note and pointing out that it does not necessarily mean war. Something has been gained if the warrior journalists at last realize that the country does not want war, but that, on the contrary, it will support the President in his efforts to find a peaceful solution of the difficult problem raised by the use of the submarine against merchantmen."

FAVORS VOTE ON WAR.

Mr. Bryan, after handing out this statement, told reporters a story of how a congressman, replying to a jingo speech, said:

"While I am personally against war, I am in favor of the country having what it wants. If it wants war, let us have war, but let us find out first if the country does want war. If it becomes necessary to ascertain the sentiment of the country, I suggest that a ballot be taken. Let those who want war vote for it; those opposed to war against it; and let the vote be taken with the understanding that those who vote for war will enlist first, and that those who vote against war will not be called upon until after those who want war have exhausted their efforts."

Asked if he joined in this sentiment, Bryan said:

"I still believe in the right of the people to rule, and I think that the Congressman's suggestion might insure deliberate action on the part of the voters."

DOUGLAS THOMAS IS KILLED BY AUTO

Douglas H. Thomas, Jr., of Baltimore and Nahant, one of the best-known architects in the country, was instantly killed in an automobile accident early today near Baltimore.

According to advices received in Nahant, Mr. Thomas' car was overturned, and he was crushed beneath it.

As soon as the news of the tragedy arrived at Nahant, Mr. Thomas' four children, who have been at the Thomas summer home in charge of their aunt, Miss Alice Lee Thomas, started for Baltimore.

Mr. Thomas, the victim of the Baltimore accident, was about forty years old and the son of Douglas H. Thomas, a Baltimore banker. Fourteen years ago he married Miss Rosalie Chadwick, daughter of Dr. Chadwick of Marlboro street. The wedding took place at the Church of the Advent.

The wedding was one of the events of the society season here and was attended by members of many Back Bay families.

Mr. Thomas established a Summer home at Nahant and the couple spent much of their Summer seasons here.

Four children were born to them. Their names and present ages are: Catherine, 13; Alice, 12; Rosamond, 10, and Elizabeth, 4.

Three years ago Mrs. Thomas died while traveling. Her death created widespread sorrow in the Back Bay and the North Shore colony.

The little girls have since lived at the Summer place in Nahant, in care of their aunt. Mr. Thomas pursued his increasing business affairs in the South, coming up North to see his children through the Summer and in the Winter months when possible.

The children have been noted in Nahant for their juvenile beauty. They have been designated as "the prettiest children in the town." There has been general intreat in them because they were motherless. When the news of the father's death came to Nahant today and spread through the neighborhood pity was also expressed for the four little girls, now without father or mother.

Demand Submarines Sink Two Big Liners

AMSTERDAM, June 11.—A dispatch from Berlin says the Berlin Post and the Tages Zeitung demand that German submarines be ordered to sink the liners Arabic and Orduna, leaving America, for England. The papers were quoted as saying that England was not intimidated by the sinking of the Lusitania.

U.S. Note Delivered at Berlin

BIG GERMAN RAID ON COMMERCE

AUTO JAIL TERM FOR LAWLEY

Fred D. Lawley, the man who built the cup defender Vanitie and whose racing yachts and pleasure sailboats are famous, was today sentenced to three months in the House of Correction on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

The sentence was imposed by Judge Kelley in the Hingham Court. Lawley appealed and was freed under bonds of $200.

William I. Arnold of Braintree, who was with Lawley, was found guilty of drunkenness and held till June 23.

Lawley and Arnold, testifying, told of an evening at the Villa Napoli at Nantasket, where Lawley had had "cocktails and red, sparkling wine," and two dances before starting to auto back to Braintree.

The men were arrested by Chief of Police Washington I. James of Hingham after their automobile had collided with a light car driven by Lester D. Hudson of Scituate, on Zion's Hill. Both cars were thrown off the road, the light car was badly damaged and Lawley's car butted through a stone wall and a rail fence, dropped down a three-foot embankment and ran wild for seventy-five feet through an apple orchard.

In the car with Lawley and Arnold were L. O. Crocker of Braintree and another man. Crocker was painfully injured.

In Hudson's car was Captain Frederick C. Pranger of the United States life saving station at North Scituate.

TELL STORIES IN COURT.

Lawley told this story in court.

"My name is Fred D. Lawley. I am a boat builder, and I live in Braintree.

"We were at Nantasket yesterday and spent about three hours last evening in the Villa Napoli.

"During that time I drank two cocktails and two glasses of red, sparkling wine. I danced twice.

"I had my last drink about 10:15. We left about half past eleven and started home.

"When the accident occurred we

2 SHIPS SUNK BY ZEPPELIN

LONDON, June 11.—For the first time during the war vessels have been sunk by a Zeppelin.

A dispatch from Amsterdam brings the news, but with no details.

The dispatch says: "A Dutch steamship arrived at Maasluis today with eight survivors from the British trawlers Wilfare and Laurentina, which were sunk in the North Sea by a Zeppelin."

As the number of survivors is so small, it is believed some were lost.

Today's dispatches also tell of submarine activity. One bark, two trawlers and three larger vessels have been sunk.

The Russian bark Thomassini has been sunk by a submarine and her crew landed at Queenstown.

The trawler Coronella, out of Lowestoft, has been sunk in the North Sea and her crew landed at Rotterdam.

The trawler Letty has been blown up on the Dogger Bank, according to a dispatch from Mulden, Holland. Her crew was lost.

The Admiralty today announced the sinking of the steamship Otago by a German submarine in the North Sea while bound for Hull. All members of her crew were saved.

Cardiff reports that the Glasgow steamer Strathcarron, 2,307 tons, was torpedoed and sunk off the Welsh coast without warning. The crew landed at Cardiff.

By wireless from Berlin comes the announcement that the "Bavrin liner Solma" has been sunk. The vessel is not listed in marine registers. The manner of her sinking is not specified. Five members of the crew and eleven passengers were saved by a Dutch steamship.

Bequeathed Dollar if It Is Called For

Bequeathing a dollar to his sister, the will of Edward F. McArdle of Taunton, was filed today in the Norfolk County Probate oCurt. The will reads:

"To my sister, Alice McArdle, I bequeath one dollar if she calls upon my executors or administrators within one year after the probate of this will for said sum."

The rest of the residue is left to Rosa A. and Annie McArdle, the testator's other sisters, who are "to share and share alike."

First Defeat for Italians Reported

COLOGNE, Germany, June 11, via London.—The correspondent of the Cologne Gazette attached to the Austrian army headquarters in the south says in a dispatch that the first considerable battle of the war with Italy has been fought in the region of the Isonzo river, and that it resulted favorably to the Austrians.

The Italians attacked Gorizia, Gradisca and Monfalcone, supporting their advance with artillery fire from pieces of large and small calibre.

COL. E. M. HOUSE, MENTIONED FOR BRYAN'S PLACE

COLONEL E. M. HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Additional emphasis today was placed by administration officials on the statement that no Republican will be selected as Secretary of State by President Wilson.

A coalition cabinet has not even been considered, it was learned. Reports that Philander C. Knox, former Secretary of State, went out motoring with President Wilson yesterday were denied. The President has not been in conference with Mr. Knox at any time, it was stated at the White House.

Acting Secretary Lansing, Secretary of War Garrison and Colonel E. M. House continue to be mentioned as possibilities for the state portfolio.

White House officials said there would be no comment on the activities of Mr. Bryan since he left the State Department.

SAFEGUARD U. S. LIVES AND SHIPS, SAYS PRESIDENT

(The complete text of the American note to Germany is on Page 10.)

By JUSTIN M'GRATH.

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The new note to Germany made public by the State Department and delivered today in Berlin, is less aggressive, less provocative in its language than the note of May 15. It does not dissent from the view expressed in that note.

The new note does not contain a suggestion of bluster. There are not such phrases in it as "strict accountability" or "omit any word or act necessary," such as gave the nate of May 15 a menacing character.

The absence of such phrases creates the general impression that the new note gives assurances of a peaceful settlement of the issue between the two countries.

But there is no abatement in the insistence upon the principles of international law which the President sought to uphold in this previous communication.

He maintains that the sacred rights of humanity were violated by the sinking of the Lusitania and that all questions raised by Germany as to the character of the vessel were irrelevant.

PRESIDENT'S REJOINDER TO GERMANY FIRM BUT FRIENDLY

He reasserts that "upon this principle of humanity, as well as upon the law founded upon this principle, the United States must stand."

He insists the sinking of the Falaba was unjustified.

He declares that the United States "very earnestly and very solemnly renews the representations of its note transmitted to the imperial German government on the 13th of May.

He still asserts that American citizens bound upon lawful errands have a right to travel on merchant ships of belligerent nationalities without being placed in jeopardy by German submarine warfare.

And he concludes by saying:

The government of the United States therefore deems it reasonable to expect that the imperial German government will adopt the measures necessary to put these principles into practice in respect to the safeguarding of American lives and American ships, and asks for assurances that this will be done.

But while in the view of diplomats there is no recession from former demands, there is noted a very decided change in spirit in the new note from the spirit which animated the first note.

DIPLOMATIC DOOR OPEN.

The communication, they think, breathes a very much more friendly spirit to Germany than the former communication.

The diplomatic door is not only left open, but in the phrase of one prominent diplomat, "it is wide open."

In his first note, President Wilson, in effect, said to Germany that it was practically impossible for Germany to carry on submarine warfare against merchant vessels carrying contraband and observe the rules of international war, and therefore, he declared, practically, if not in specific terms, that the United States expected Germany to cease such warfare.

But in the note made public today he leaves it to Germany to "adopt the measures necessary to put these principles (the principles of international law) into practice in respect of the safeguarding of American lives and American ships."

ASKS FOR ASSURANCE.

He no longer assumes to regulate German submarine warfare except to the extent that it may affect American lives and American ships and he leaves it to Germany to decide upon the method by which that may be done. All he asks on that point is assurance that it will be done.

His suggestion that the United States act as the medium of any representations Germany may desire to make to Great Britain on the subject of the blockade "in an attempt to come to an understanding with the government of Great Britain by which the character and conditions of war upon the sea may be changed," is regarded as one of the most important suggestions of the note.

SHOWS FRIENDLINESS.

That suggestion, it is believed, must impress not only the German government but the German people with the desire of the United States to be both just and friendly to Germany.

Diplomats see great possibilities in that suggestion. They are hopeful that if Germany sees fit to adopt it some understanding may be reached which would be the first step toward peace. Unless Germany is absolutely fixed in her determination not to alter the character of her submarine warfare in any particular it is believed that the United States may reasonably expect a friendly reply and one which will start negotiations which if cautiously carried on, will result in a complete understanding.

If Germany is so determined, then a break between the two governments is conceded to be inevitable.

Never in the history of the United States has there been a situation comparable to that which has been created by Mr. Bryan's resignation as Secretary of State because of radical and irreconcilable differences between him and the President as to the proper foreign policy to pursue in the grave emergency which now confronts the nation.

His resignation at this time, and for the reason given, was in itself a grave matter, undoubtedly. But the resignation is overshadowed by his announced program of action to justify himself before the people.

The note sent to Germany by the United States and made public today is framed in accordance with the ideas of the President. What if Germany should reject it and make inevitable a rupture of diplomatic relations between the two countries? Will Mr. Bryan still continue his campaign? Will he ascribe the rupture as due to the failure of the President to accept his advice as to the manner and method of meeting the issue between the two countries growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania.

Under the constitution the President speaks for the nation. But on this particular issue Mr. Bryan frankly avows that he hopes to speak for the people.

He says that he and the President both sincerely want peace, but differ as to method to be employed in securing peace. He will endeavor to convince the people that his method is the better method, and if he can so convince them hopes through them to convert the President.

WHAT OF BRYAN?

But the President has taken his stand and it is to him that Germany must reply. If the reply is unfavorable there is no question that Mr. Bryan's propaganda for peace through arbitration will gain great headway. But can the President turn back then?

The situation will become embarrassing. It might easily lead to internal disorder. That is what many here fear. Many who agree with Mr. Bryan's views do not indorse his course.

They think he should remain silent, at least until the crisis between the two countries has passed.

Undoubtedly if Germany should reject the proposals of the United States Mr. Bryan would consider the rejection as a vindication of the soundness of his advice. But already the friends of the President are saying, with some bitterness, that if Germany does reject the American proposals the responsibility will be with Mr. Bryan.

Germany, they say, may see in Mr. Bryan's resignation and his announced course of action an opportunity to divide American sentiment by refusing to meet the demands of the President.

NOTE ASSAILED BY VON MACHE

That President Wilson's second note to Germany endeavors by phraseology to conceal facts and refuses to acknowledge the submarine as a new weapon of warfare, was the declaration today of Dr. Edmund von Mach of Harvard, author of "What Germany Wants." Dr. von Mach said this afternoon:

"The President's note consists of two parts. In the second part he rises to the high level of humanitarian principles and in the great part he descends to the level of him who by his phraseology endeavors to conceal the facts.

DOES NOT DENY GUNS.

He does not deny that the Lusitania carried guns and contents himself with stating his belief that she was not armed for offensive action.

When he implies that she "did not carry a cargo prohibited by the statutes of the United States" he confuses the law which forbids the carrying of explosives on passenger steamers with an exculpative order which some years ago decreed that cartridges are not explosives.

The interference with the laws of the nation by executive order is one of the greatest abuses developed in recent years.

The President says that the Lusitania was not "serving as a transport," but cannot deny that she was "transporting troops from Canada." The British raising of the Lusitania as an auxiliary cruiser the President does not discuss.

DEFENDS SUBMARINES.

The second part of the note refuses to acknowledge the fact that the invention of submarines has introduced a new weapon into modern warfare, and reads like the declarations of the good men of centuries ago who tried to prevent the introduction of gunpowder, or to minimize its use, by insisting that guns should be shot off only close at hand and according to the rules of "civilized warfare based on the use of the sword."

The moral outcry against the use of submarines in war is like that of Chevalier Bayard's chivalrous soul, who on his deathbed thanks God he "never had given quarter in battle to the cowardly musketeers."

Germany is perfectly willing to agree with the United States on rules governing the use of this new weapon of submarines, which shall be fair to neutrals and belligerents alike. To circumscribe its use by the customs of a time when it was not known is impossible.

To demand this is not fair and to insist upon such a demand precludes us from securing in its stead the greatest possible protection for the rights of humanity.

PRESS OF GERMANY ADOPTS A WAITING POLICY ON U. S. NOTE

By International News Service.

BERLIN, June 11—Adopting a policy of cautious waiting, the German newspapers this morning contained no comment upon the United States note, which was received late yesterday by James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador, for transmission to the German Foreign Office.

There was an atmosphere of tense expectation in press and government circles over the contents of the document. "America" is the caption upon an article prominently displayed by the Lokal Anzeiger in the position usually reserved by the newspaper for communications of the utmost importance. This article advises a waiting policy on the part of the German government until it is ascertained what the final stand of President Wilson will be.

British Cruiser Sunk by Austrian ware going from twenty to twenty-five miles an hour.

"I have driven automobiles nine years, never had an accident, and never was arrested before."

Arnold told practically the same story.

Hutson said: "We were going about ten miles an hour, up the hill, on the right hand side of the road. This big machine swung around the corner, coming fast. It had powerful searchlights. It hit us."

Captain Franzen said: "We were going slowly, on the right side of the street, on our way to Scituate from a meeting in East Weymouth.

"When the car swung down on us I involuntarily put up my hands to shield my eyes from the powerful searchlights.

"Then the other car hit us.

JUST A "GENTLEMAN'S DRINK."

"I got out and saw two or three men lying on the ground and helped them up. One was bleeding from a cut behind the ear."

Dr. Karl A. Peterson of Hingham told of being summoned, and said he thought the men were under the influence of liquor.

Attorney W. L. Barnard of No. 50 Congress street, Boston, argued that the confusion of the accident and the fact that Mr. Arnold is rather deaf might have made him appear muddled and under the influence of liquor.

"And as for Mr. Lawley," he said, "he had only had two cocktails, an ordinary gentleman's drink, which most gentlemen take on occasions. I don't see how he could have been intoxicated."

Judge Kelley said that a man who had been drinking ought to find someone who had not been drinking to drive him home in his automobile, and that he thought drinking men in an automobile were a public menace. He sentenced Mr. Lawley to three months.

Lawley appealed.

Lawley is superintendent of the George Lawley & Son Corporation, South Boston, a member of the firm, a prominent naval architect, and builder of the cup yacht Vanitie and others. He is prominent in amateur theatricals, and with his wife belongs to many clubs.

He is thirty-seven, was graduated from Technology in 1900, and has a son fourteen years old.

Aviator Jones Flies Over City

Harry M. Jones, the aviator who has a school at Squantum, today carried the first passenger over the city of Boston.

Jones takes on his machine a motor built at the Sturtevant Works in Hyde Park. This motorist he wanted to order some extra parts, but had no telephone handy.

So he wrote out his order, tied a weight to it, took aboard Mechanician George Hershey, and flew to Hyde Park. Swooping low there, he dropped the note, then wheeled and started for home.

He passed over Boston at the height of 5,000 feet. When he saw the Custom House tower, he shut off his power and glided from there to the aviation field at Squantum, landing safely.

Jones is the only aviator who ever landed on Boston Common. He landed there January 2, 1913.

for children making purchases while they last Saturday.

Hear the Famous Orchestra of Ten Instruments (Nano withheld)

The great event of the day will be the cutting of the birthday cake at 2.30 P. M. in the 5th floor restaurant.

Mrs. Gertrude Halladay Leonard, chairman of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, will preside. Miss Margaret Foley will deliver an address to the visiting crowds. Mrs. Crowley and Mrs. Evelyn Coe, executive secretary will be present.

The cake will be distributed in souvenir pieces, 101 of which will each contain an aluminum coin good for one of our 10c lunches any day before July 1st.

This is probably the largest cake ever baked. Twelve feet in circumference, it required 96 eggs, 55 lbs. of sugar, 50 lbs. of flour and weighs 160 pounds. It was baked in our own ovens by our own bakers, and is surmounted with 101 candles.

BRYAN PREPARING A STATEMENT TO THE GERMAN-AMERICANS

In Address on "the Real Issue" He Sounds a Call to the Advocates of Peace.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Following his attack on President Wilson's note to Germany as being built on the "policy of force," Former Secretary Bryan promises another statement to be issued tonight to "German-Americans."

The nature of this third statement, with which he says he will rest his case, Mr. Bryan refuses to discuss in advance.

"Of course, I shall always be ready to talk when the occasion arises and I think it necessary," Mr. Bryan added.

His second appeal is addressed "To the American People." He says he is confident they will credit him with honorable intentions, yet admits good intentions are not sufficient alone.

He declares, if the public verdict is against him, he asks no mercy, stating that men in public life must be "willing to bear any deserved punishment from ostracism to execution."

Former Secretary Bryan's statement, entitled "The Real Issue," follows:

To the American People—You now have before you the text of the note to Germany—the note which it would have been my official duty to sign had I remained Secretary of State. I ask you to sit in judgment upon my decision to resign rather than to share responsibility for it. I am sure you will credit me with honorable motives, but that is not enough. Good intentions could not atone for a mistake at such a time, on such a subject and under such circumstances. If your verdict is against me, I ask no mercy; I desire none if I have acted unwisely. A man in public life must act according to his conscience, but however conscientiously he acts, he must be prepared to accept without complaint any condemnation which his own errors may bring upon him; he must be willing to bear any desired punishment from ostracism to execution. But hear me before you pass sentence.

For Peaceful Solution.

The President and I agree in purpose; we desire a peaceful solution of the dispute which has arisen between the United States and Germany. We not only desire it, but, with equal fervor, we pray for it, but we differ irreconcilably as to the means of securing it. If it were merely a personal difference, it would be a matter of little moment, for all the presumptions are on his side—the presumptions that go with power and authority. He is your President; I am a private citizen without office or title—but one of the 100,000,000 inhabitants.

But the real issue is not between persons; it is between systems; and I rely for vindication wholly upon the strength of the position taken.

Among the influences which governments employ in dealing with each other there are two which are pre-eminent and antagonistic—force and persuasion. Force speaks with firmness and acts through the ultimatum; persuasion employs argument, courts investigation and depends upon negotiation. Force represents the old system—the system that must pass away; persuasion represents the new system—the system that has been growing, all too slowly, it is true, but growing for 1900 years. In the old system war is the chief cornerstone—war which at its best is little better than war at its worst; the new system contemplates an universal brotherhood established through the uplifting power of example.

Sucked into Contest.

If I correctly interpret the note to Germany, it conforms to the standards of the old system rather than to the rules of the new, and I cheerfully admit that it is abundantly supported by precedents—precedents written in characters of blood upon almost every page of human history. Austria furnishes the most recent precedent; it was Austria's firmness that dictated the ultimatum against Serbia which set the world at war. Every ruler now participating in this unparalleled conflict has proclaimed his desire for peace and denied responsibility for the war, and it is only charitable that we should credit all of them with good faith. They desired peace, but they sought it according to the rules of the old system.

They believed that firmness would give the best assurance of the maintenance of peace, and faithfully following precedent they went so near to fire that they were, one after another, sucked into the contest.

Never before have the frightful follies of this fatal system been so clearly revealed as now. The most civilized and enlightened—aye, the most Christian, of the nations of Europe are grappling with each other as if in a death struggle. They are sacrificing the best and bravest of their sons on the battlefield; they are converting their gardens into cemeteries and their homes into houses of mourning; they are taxing the wealth of today and laying a burden of debt on the toil of the future; they have filled the air with thunderbolts more deadly than those of Jove and they have multiplied the perils of the deep.

Jingoes Caught Rabies.

Adding fresh fuel to the flame of hate, they have daily devised new horrors, until one side is endeavoring to drown non-combatant men, women and children at sea, while the other side seeks to starve non-combatant men, women and children on land. And they are so absorbed in alternate retaliations and in competitive cruelties that they seem, for the time being, blind to the rights of neutrals and deaf to the appeals of humanity. A tree is known by its fruit. The war in Europe is the ripened fruit of the old system.

This is what firmness, supported by force, has done in the old world; shall we invite it to cross the Atlantic? Already the jingoes of our own country have caught the rabies from the dogs of war; shall the opponents of organized slaughter be silent while the disease spreads?

As a humble follower of the Prince of Peace; as a devoted believer in the prophecy that "They that take the sword shall perish with the sword," I beg to be counted among those who earnestly urge the adoption of a course in this matter which will leave no doubt of our government's willingness to continue negotiations with Germany until an amicable understanding is reached, or, at least, until the stress of war over, we can appeal from Philip drunk with carnage to Philip sobered by the memories of an historic friendship and by a recollection of the innumerable ties of kinship that bind the Fatherland to the United States.

Some nation must lead the world out of the black night of war into the light of that day when "swords shall be beaten into plowshares." Why not make that honor ours? Some day—why not now?—the nations will learn that enduring peace cannot be built upon fear—that good will does not grow upon the stalk of violence. Some day the nations will place their trust in love, the weapon for which there is no shield; in love, that suffereth long and is kind; in love, that is not easily provoked; that beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things; in love which, though despised as weakness by the worshippers of Mars, abideth when all else fails.

W. J. BRYAN.

EDITORIAL COMMENT ON NOTE BY NEW YORK NEWSPAPERS

NEW YORK, June 11.—New York newspaper comments on the Wilson note follow:

THE TRIBUNE says: "We cannot feel that it expresses with the necessary earnestness and incisiveness the attitude of the great mass of Americans toward the outrages committed on the high seas by German submarine commanders—outrages which culminated in the Lusitania massacre."

THE TIMES says: "The reply to Germany's note is the appeal of a nation of the twentieth century to a nation that has reverted to he principles and practices of the thirteenth The demands of the barons which evoked Magna Charta from King John are the demands we now make of Germany, that she recognize the natural principles of justice and humanity, that she acknowledge laws without which men could enjoy no equality of right."

THE WORLD says: "President Wilson's reply to the German note could hardly have been made more moderate and restrained without surrendering the American contention in this controversy. It is apparent that the President is determined to give Germany every chance to put herself in accord with the practices of civilized warfare and to make it as easy as possible for the German Government to accede to the demands of the United States Government."

"THE HERALD says: "It is clearly apparent that a conspiracy masquerading under a counterfeit effort to preserve peace had been under way since the dispatch of the President's note to Germany, following the sinking of the Lusitania, which had for its purpose the surrender of American rights, the smirching of the murder of American men, women and children.

"The note sent on Wednesday by the President to Germany shows how completely this plot has been frustrated. The President stands firmly on his original ground. He does not send to Germany an ultimatum."

"THE SUN says: "No magnifying lens at hand is powerful enough to enable us to discover in the text of our Government's third note to Germany on her unlawful submarine practices—the note which Secretary Bryan resigned rather than sign—one verb of menace, one noun of bluster, one adjective of provocation, one adverb of premature hostility, even a semicolon or comma justifying the eminent quitter's attitude toward the document."

BRYAN OPENS PEACE CAMPAIGN QUARTERS

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—William Jennings Bryan has already written a dividing line between himself and the Wilson administration and has builded a new white house in Calumet place.

The initial Bryan note, the first act of the ex-prime minister's political liberty, alienated the majority of the administration's official friends and established an antagonism which will survive the settlement of the German controversy.

And within the hours of his farewell to the State Department, the stately old Logan mansion at Iowa Pet place had become a new white house, in which the late premier and established his Democratic court, to which he receives his swarming visitors, where every evening at 6:30 he gives audience to the newspapermen just as President Wilson does, from which he daily issues the proclamations which are astonishing and startling the Wilson government and to which the Bryan friends and followers are beginning to flock from all over the country.

There is no concealment anywhere of the fact that government officials are amazed and indignant that former Secretary Bryan should have forestalled the President's official note to Germany by his personal statement of Wednesday. The indignation was deepened and intensified today when Mr. Bryan met and paralleled the official publication of the Wilson answer to Germany by a similar publication of his own carefully prepared and fully charged column of his own.

It is a direct, frank challenge to leave the Bryan strength against the Wilson strength in the mighty fight of the coming political year.

Whatever the President said to Mr. Bryan in parting benediction and whatever Mr. Bryan said in tenderness to the President the whole atmosphere of local and national politics is bristling with antagonism.

"ALMOST A TRAITOR."

And neither the diplomatic pro test of officials nor the perfunctory reassurance of friends of interested politicians can blind the eyes of the people to the potent fact that the battle of the Democratic organization is on and that it has started in a way that leaves no promise of a peaceful progress or a harmonious conclusion.

The administration people are saying now—some softly and some openly—that Bryan is almost a traitor to his party and has betrayed the President and the cabinet.

There can be but one possible outcome of the spirit and temper and terms of the fight that is radiating now from the Capitol to the country.

Those two are strong men, and they are fighting men—obstinate in conviction, resolute in temper and fearless in advocacy. Each has his whole heart set on the idea that he backs. Neither is likely to be convinced in public by the other whose private logic he has refuted to his own satisfaction.

Nor in either of these men of a calibre to be convinced by any numerical settlement of the issue, or to be forgiving to the man whose power has thwarted the triumph of his most cherished idea.

It simply means war, and war means bitterness and division.

The current opinion of today is that this division will reach its climax only at the Presidential primaries of the Democratic party.

It is undoubtedly true the majority control of the body of that Mr. Wilson would have every advantage over Mr. Bryan in a Presidential contest between the two. He is the President in a period of stress and peril. He has so far carried the country and Congress with him. He is the ablest writer of public addresses in the country.

If the conclusion of this controversy and the Presidential primaries find our country still at peace, then, say the President's supporters, no man in either party can have a chance with him before the people.

Meanwhile the President is moving apparently unshaken by the rest in his cabinet and in his party. His officials declare that never in the history of the White House have telegraphic assurances of sympathy, congratulations and support poured in in such volumes as yesterday and today. The Hon. Thetus W. Sims, of Tennessee, sends him this which is typical of them all:

"The people are with you and they never forget."

Sea-Going Navy Demanded by Admiral Winslow

NEW YORK, June 11.—Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow, commandant of the Newport navy yard, addressing a gathering of prominent men at a luncheon of the Navy League, asserted that the promotion system of the navy was pernicious that men able to stand entertaining were advanced, while their sea experience was sadly neglected, and that the age limit was wrong.

"The navy, he said, should be run by navy men. Unless such men were placed in control he asserted, the navy could not be efficient.

"Seniority," he said, "counts today and particularly a man's health instead of a man's fitness. Today a man who can dine well ashore, ride in an automobile in comfort and stand the entertainment is pushed along, while his sea experience is sadly neglected. It should not be necessary to insist on examination for promotions, and the age limit is wrong. A man of sixty years cannot stand what a man of forty-five can go through. The older man can't do his work at sea.

"We must have a sea-going navy. We must insist upon a sea education for our navy."

Compels All Impurities To Abandon System

Blood Troubles Can not Remain If Properly Treated.

There is in S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, a property that absolutely compels harmful impurities in disfigured blood to their identity. No matter what they are called nor how destructive they are there is in S. S. S. a powerful, searching counter influence to annihilate the most eruptive germs, cause the poisonous things to convert it into an inert substance that is quickly thrown out of the blood and out of the body by the skin, lungs, bowels, kidneys, destroyed in the liver. There is not a single instance in medicine today that in any sense is an improvement over S. S. S. Surgery is a wonderful, masterful science, but when it comes to purifying the blood S. S. S. stands alone. Thousands of doctors have prescribed it. But far-sighted doctors long ago realized that in the vegetable nature of S. S. S. were certain ingredients that to the blood in sickness were just as essential as the flesh-building elements of the grains, fruits, fats and sugars of our daily food. The average doctor is humane and of trained intelligence. He has seen the recoveries from worst cases of blood trouble by the use of S. S. S. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today of any druggist. Accept no substitute. And if you wish proper advice on any form of blood trouble, write to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 102 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is worth while doing so.

PODESTAGNO CONQUISTATA ALLE PORTE DI TRIESTE

ROMA, 11 Giugno.—Il Comando annuncia oggi ufficialmente la presa di Podestagno, vinse Trieste. Gli Austriaci fanno dei furiosi attacchi per riprendere l'importantissimo passo di Prekopel.

Lungo l'Isonzo la battaglia per la possessione dei più importanti punti strategici continua, specialmente all'est di Tolmino.

La presa di Monfalcone da parte degli Italiani è ritenuta dai critici militari come di principale e grandissima importanza per la riuscita della campagna.

Progressi degli Italiani si riportano da tutti i punti della estesa linea di battaglia.

Le perdite degli Austriaci nei giorni 2-3-5 giugno per la conquista di Prekopel furono 6,000 morti, 4,000 feriti e 220 prigionieri.

Specialmente nella notte dal 3 giugno. Intendendo gli Austriaci riprendere Prekepel, una posizione a cui attaccano una grande importanza, ebbero delle gravissime perdite.

ROMA, 10 Giugno.—La presa di Monfalcone è un ostacolo per l'esercito austriaco. Gli italiani se ne sono impadroniti unitamente ai promontorio Rocca e Circolo. Chiese che dominano tutto intorno. La bandiera tricolore sventola su una antica torre elevate dai Veneziani.

Le truppe italiane sono ora a 16 miglia da Trieste. Dalle loro posizioni vedono il porto austriaco, che è la meta delle loro aspirazioni, con le sue fortificazioni, le sue chiese e i signorili palazzi.

L'occupazione di Monfalcone fa all'esercito italiano il controllo di una importante stazione ferroviaria di transito che diretta in parecchie direzioni.

Gli austriaci han possesso più mandare da Trieste truppe nella vallata dell'Isonzo, tanto più che un'altra azione italiana che va verso il nord di Tolmino taglierà anche l'accesso alle comunicazioni del settentrione.

L'intero sistema ferroviario sull'Isonzo è minacciato e parte di esso è in mano degli Italiani.

Con la presa di Monfalcone cadde in mano degli italiani quello importante arsenale e anche il cantiere navale. Parecchie torpediniere in costruzione sono cadute in mano degli Italiani, come pure una grande provvista di munizioni e grano.

Monfalcone è stata bombardata tre volte dalle piccole navi italiane, ma la città potè essere occupata soltanto dopo il fuoco terribile delle artiglierie e dopo gli attacchi delle truppe.

Quantunque non potrebbe dirsi che un immediato attacco su Trieste sarebbe una presa di Monfalcone, pure, oggi, l'impresa ha maggiori probabilità di riuscita.

Si deve oltre ricordare che l'esercito italiano ha avanzato sul territorio austriaco per circa 10 miglia dopo l'occupazione di Cervignano, la prima importante città posta nella provincia di Gradisca.

Gompers Not for Peace at Any Sacrifice

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued the following statement on the present international situation:

"My opinion is that, regardless of what honorable position the United States may take, the effort will be made to drag us into the international conflict whether we like it or not.

"It is a great pity that there is not greater publicity regarding international relations and diplomatic communications, so that the people may be in a position to form their judgment for effort, but precious to definite action being taken.

"I suppose, however, that this thought can find its acceptance only when more normal conditions shall prevail.

"The influence of the American Federation of Labor, of the workers of our country, will be exerted for the maintenance of peace and yet we cannot permit to be challenged the insistence that the lives of Americans shall not be unnecessarily and unwarrantably jeopardized."

New Flag for Canal Zone.

MORE GERMAN TRENCHES TAKEN

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, June 11.—The capture of more German trenches in the region of Hebuterne, south of Arras, along the Arras-Lille highway, is announced in an official communique issued by the French War Office today. Further ground has also been given up by the Germans in the zone of hostilities to the east of the German works known as the "Labyrinth," southeast of Neuville St. Vaast. The official communique, which deals exclusively with operations around Arras, follows:

"There is nothing of importance to add to the communique of last night, except:

"1—Renewed successes at the 'Labyrinth,' where we have continued to drive back the enemy.

"2—Some progress to the east of the 'Labyrinth,' where we captured several German works.

"Near the highway from Arras to Lille in the region of Hebuterne we have increased our gains to the north of the front established on June 9. We captured several trenches and made 100 prisoners and took several machines at that point."

ITALIANS WITHIN SIGHT OF TRIESTE

By International News Service.

ROME, June 11.—The Italian troops are today within sight of Trieste, the important Austrian city, the capture of which is one of the main immediate objects of Italy's campaign.

Besides Monfalcone, the Italians have taken Podestagno, in Trent, north of Cortina. From the Monfalcone hills the Italian soldiers can see Trieste, but sixteen miles away, while its possession gives them control of the chief railway junction, preventing the Austrians from transporting troops or ammunitions between Trieste and Tolmino and Gradisca. Monfalcone is the centre of electrical supply for Trieste and has large warehousing yards.

On taking possession the Italians can lay their flag on the ruins of an ancient tower built by the Venetians.

A tremendous night and day bombardment of the Austrian forts of Santa Lucia and Santa Maria, due south of the front established on June 9. We captured several trenches and made 100 prisoners and took several machines at that point.

TEUTONS DRIVEN BACK IN GALICIA

By International News Service.

PETROGRAD, June 11.—Suddenly assuming the offensive, the Russian forces in Galicia, south of Lemberg, have defeated the Austro-German forces upon the Dniester River, capturing 8,500 men, 188 officers, 17 cannon and 45 maxim guns.

Official announcement of the Russian victory in Galicia was made by the Russian War Office today.

The Austro-German army of General von Linsingen has been driven back across the Dniester by the Russians and the Austro-German drive against Lemberg from the south has been checked.

The following is the official statement:

"The Austro-Germans have been driven back to the right bank of the Dniester. We captured 17 cannon, 49 maxims, 188 officers and 8,500 men.

"Our troops by heroic efforts forced back across the river the important enemy forces which had crossed to the left bank near Juraslow and extended their line along the Juraslow-Siwaka front. The enemy losses in the battle were heavy. The Austro-German forces fought obstinately."

13,000 Teutons at Large in London

LONDON, June 11.—Because of inadequate internment facilities there still are 9,000 Germans and 4,000 Austro-Hungarians of military age at large in the metropolitan area, according to official figures made public today.

SWEDISH NOBLEMAN AND YOUNG BROOKLYN GIRL IN DEATH PACT

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 11.—A tragedy of love had its culmination in Central Park early today when a young Swedish nobleman and his sweetheart died in a suicide pact. The young woman, who was identified as Miss Annie Malmquist, a member of a rich and prominent Swedish family of Brooklyn, had been shot twice in the breast over the heart.

The man, Frederick Hussenius, a member of a noble Swedish family of Stockholm, was shot in the head. He was living when found, but died shortly afterward without regaining consciousness.

An automatic pistol was found clutched in the man's hand.

At the morgue the bodies were positively identified as those of Miss Malmquist and Hussenius. Ludwig Norman, who identified the man's body, said:

"Mr. Hussenius was of noble birth, coming from an old Swedish family. He quarreled with his parents and came to this country to make his own way. He had known Miss Malmquist in Sweden. She was an accomplished musician."

IDENTIFIED BY A LETTER.

A letter in the man's pocket led to prompt identification. The two had evidently been automobiling, for the girl wore a linen auto coat and an auto veil. Both were stylishly dressed. The girl was about twenty-two years old and the man ten years older.

Patrolman Flaherty of the Arsenal police station in Central Park was walking along West Drive when he heard three shots in rapid succession. Rushing to the spot, he found Hussenius lying in the grass upon his back and Miss Malmquist at his side with her head resting upon her companion's left arm.

KEY TO TRAGEDY.

Several letters were found on Hussenius' person. One addressed to Ludwig Norman, which gave the key to the strange double tragedy and led to identification, read as follows:

My Dear Ludwig—When two natures like ours are brought together—temperamental and hyper-sensitive—a calamity is bound to occur; that is from the viewpoint of the world. But for us—for her and for me—there is nothing left, and with our hearts filled with joy we approach the gate that leads to the Great Unknown.

Rejoicing, whether it be oblivion or an eternity where nothing shall part us, we have the strength to enter upon the dim path together.

You may understand, although I hardly think so; but I don't expect any one else to understand. Will you write my mother a nice letter; assuredly you can do it. Tell her that even my memory of her could not hold me back. She has forgiven everything else—she will forgive this. May the grief will surpass her strength and we will soon be united. Then, if nothing more, she will forgive and understand.

Rumors will be circulated—insidious and calumnious. They are utterly false. Our love, so pure, so serene, cannot be understood by this world. Purified and sanctified by her holy spirit, I am now her equal, which I never was before.

Can you arrange so that we may rest together in the same grave. Try it. It doesn't matter so very much though, for what we are leaving behind was only an obstacle to our further progress.

And so, Ludwig, farewell. For everything you have done for me I thank you. No one else would or could do for me what I have asked of you, and to no one but you could I trust these things. As always yours, HUSSO.

OTHER LETTERS FOUND.

Another letter, addressed "To Nobody in Particular," read:

"In well-considered covenant, not impulsive, not in passion. If there is a God we ask His blessing on the world and on all our dear ones, who have left us and whom we have left. Believe us we do, 'who humbly and without fear, are daring much upon our fate; believe that it is for the best. Peace is with us; peace and strength and joy to live be with you and abide with you."

Still another letter was addressed to Miss Malmquist, No. 532 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn.

Santa Barbara Alien to Teach without Pay

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., June 11.—Unable to collect his salary for the last three months because of the alien teachers' law of the State, Francis Poole of Fire-Hollyn, principal of the Carpinteria grammar school, has announced he would remain at his post in the institution he has helped to build up without remuneration. The principal failed to declare his intention to become a citizen of the United States because he would thereby sacrifice large property possessions in England.

Transport Service Into Mid-Africa

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The final link in the railway and river line of communication between the mouth of the Congo and Lake Tanganyika has been completed. Ocean going to Dar-es-Salaam on the East Coast, 700 miles away, vessels can go up as far as Matadi, eighty-five miles from the mouth of the river, thence a railway of 366 miles runs to Stanley Pool; from there the river is navigable again to Stanleyville, a distance of 1,000 miles, and on up the rivers being used wherever possible. Rivers and canals now form the means of communication to interior stations, carried on a boat, a house, a town, on shore.

Allston Woman Hurt as Horse Runs Away

Mrs. Annie E. Bailey of No. 19 Everett street, Allston, was thrown from a horse at Kenmore square and Beacon street last night and received a slight injury to her shoulder when a horse, attached to a buggy in which she was riding, ran away at Harvard avenue and Commonwealth avenue, Brookline. Miss Ella Le Lacheur was with her. Both were thrown out when the animal ran up the sidewalk on Beacon street. Miss Le Lacheur escaped with a slight shaking up.

Discovers Fire in Downtown Building

The early discovery of a fire in the building at No. 68 Broad street by Patrolman Bell of the Court Square station prevented a blaze that might have had disastrous results today. The officer noticed smoke issuing from the second floor of the building, which is occupied by T. McEnany, a truckman. He sounded an alarm. Fearing that the blaze might spread to the Custom House Stables, adjoining, and housing over 150 horses, Bell broke a window with his club and aroused John Roach, the night man. He warned him to be ready to lead the horses to safety at quick notice. When the apparatus arrived at the scene, the smoke had spread throughout the entire building, but the blaze was hastily extinguished.

'It's Much Better for a Boy to Get a Fist on Nose Than a Knife Between Ribs'

Champion Willard Believes Boxing Should Be Taught in Public Schools—John L. Sullivan's Sloping Shoulders an Indication of Force Behind His Blows.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt; all rights reserved.)

THERE'S a lot of nonsense talked about the human body. A plain old Pottowattomie buck taught me more about muscle than I ever saw in books. I was telling him one day that I wished I had square shoulders. You see, I thought square shoulders meant great strength.

"No good," he grunted. "Square shoulders square shoulders."

He turned down my shirt collar and showed me why. With his finger he followed the big rope of muscle that ran from my ear down to the shoulder. It was that big bunch on each side of my neck that gave me my sloping shoulders.

"Hold head on," he explained, "heap strong. Square shoulders mean you got weak neck."

This same Indian was the one that told me to be careful about lifting heavy weights because I might rupture myself. Every boy is proud of his strength and likes to show it off. It's a foolish business, for a rupture is likely to leave a man weak all his life.

He made me see that it wasn't the size of muscles that counted, but the speed and endurance of those muscles. A man with big bulging muscles is usually so slow that his strength doesn't amount to anything. Keep your muscles loose!

I remember one day in training quarters at Havana I was telling about this old Indian.

"He gave it to you straight," said a sporting writer. "That square shoulders stuff is a tailor's scheme. When I come around tomorrow I'll show you a picture of John L. Sullivan in his prime."

He did. The picture showed that Sullivan's shoulders sloped more than mine. Big muscles ran from his ears clear down to the ends of his shoulders.

I suppose Sullivan was about the most powerful man the ring ever saw. His muscles had the strength and quickness of a tiger's. The swiftness and sureness of his blows made it possible for him to fight as no other man ever fought.

He went at his man just like he was chopping wood, driving him around the ring with rights and lefts. Sullivan never stepped back. He was always going forward.

Old Mike Donovan tells a good story that I don't think he ever published. It was when Donovan was looked on as the most skilful man in the American ring. He was matched for some fight, and before it came off he went to Boston to give an exhibition.

The club was to furnish him some chopping block so he could show Boston people how clever he was.

John L. Sullivan was the chopping block. He was a young Irish backdriver and had never fought a professional fight. The minute Donovan looked at him he smelled trouble. Sullivan showed up as quick and as strong and as savage as a mountain lion. Every move made his muscles ripple under the skin like silk.

"See here, young fellow," Donovan said, "I'm not going to hurt you tonight. I've got a big match on, and I wouldn't break that little finger on you for a thousand dollars. So take it easy and don't get smart."

"That so?" Sullivan rumbled. "Well, you'll be lucky if I don't break your neck if you get in that ring with me."

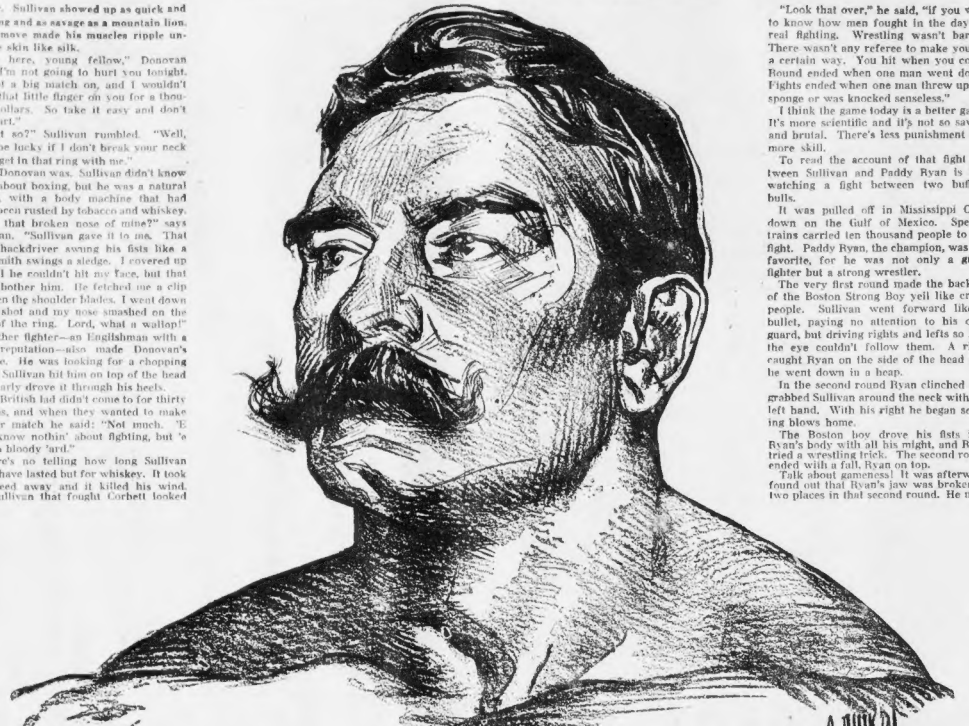
And Donovan was. Sullivan didn't know much about boxing, but he was a natural fighter, with a body machine that had never been rusted by tobacco and whiskey.

"See that broken nose of mine?" says Donovan. "Sullivan gave it to me. That crazy backdriver swung his fists like a blacksmith swings a sledge. I covered up so well he couldn't hit my face, but that didn't bother him. He fetched me a clip between the shoulder blades. I went down like a shot and my nose smashed on the floor of the ring. Lord, what a wallop!"

Another fighter—an Englishman with a good reputation—also made Donovan's mistake. He was looking for a chopping block. Sullivan hit him on top of the head and nearly drove it through his heels.

The British had didn't come to for thirty minutes, and when they wanted to make another match he said: "Not much. 'E don't know nothin' about fighting, but 'e 'its too bloody 'ard."

There's no telling how long Sullivan might have lasted but for whiskey. It took his speed away and it killed his wind. The Sullivan that fought Corbett looked like the Sullivan that fought Paddy Ryan, but that was only on the outside. Whiskey had tied his hands and roped his feet. He could hit only half as fast and half as hard.



John L. Sullivan in his prime. Note the big muscles that run from his ears down to the ends of his shoulders.

None knows this better than Sullivan. Talk to him today and his first words will be a warning against drink. He is spending his time telling boys to leave whiskey alone, and how he wishes somebody had given him that good advice when he was a boy.

That sporting writer I talked with in Havana gave me a book to read that had the story of the Sullivan-Ryan fight in it.

"Look that over," he said, "if you want to know how men fought in the days of real fighting. Wrestling wasn't barred. There wasn't any referee to make you hit a certain way. You hit when you could. Round ended when one man went down. Fights ended when one man threw up the sponge or was knocked senseless."

I think the game today is a better game. It's more scientific and it's not so savage and brutal. There's less punishment and more skill.

To read the account of that fight between Sullivan and Paddy Ryan is like watching a fight between two buffalo bulls.

It was pulled off in Mississippi City, down on the Gulf of Mexico. Special trains carried ten thousand people to the fight. Paddy Ryan, the champion, was the favorite, for he was not only a great fighter but a strong wrestler.

The very first round made the backers of the Boston Strong Boy yell like crazy people. Sullivan went forward like a bullet, paying no attention to his own guard, but driving rights and lefts so fast the eye couldn't follow them. A right caught Ryan on the side of the head and he went down in a heap.

In the second round Ryan clinched and grabbed Sullivan around the neck with his left hand. With his right he began sending blows home.

Talk about gameness! It was afterward found out that Ryan's jaw was broken in two places in that second round. He must have suffered terrible pain, but he never let out a whimper or showed a sign of weakness.

They fought breast to breast all through the third round. Sullivan finally got in a blow to Ryan's ear that sent the champion to the grass. At the end of the fourth round both of them were so weak from slugging that they had to be helped to their corners.

In the fifth round Ryan tried some more wrestling. Sullivan beat him to the hold, and, with a cross buttock swing, threw the champion over his shoulder. Ryan hit like a log, and it looked like the fight was over. But he came back for the eighth as full of courage as ever.

In this round Ryan caught Sullivan twice on the jaw and nearly dropped him. But the Boston boy didn't have whiskey in him in those days. His heart was on the job. He came back at the champion like a tiger, and beat him to the ground with a volley of blows.

The ninth round ended the fight. Jaw broken, his body one big bruise, and his eyes almost closed, the champion came up to the scratch with a rush. Sullivan met him with a hammer-like clout in the jaw that sent him down for keeps.

The thing that stunned me was the length of the fight. It was all over in eleven minutes! Why, there was enough fighting in it to make twenty fights today.

I will say, however, that the prize ring is better today than it was then. We have worked out an idea of self-defence. It's boxing today, and then it was slugging.

Our modern boxing has something in it for boys who do not intend to become prize fighters. It teaches him how to take care of himself if he gets into trouble.

Sullivan didn't bother about defence. He just waded in and smashed right and left.

But they were certainly real men in those days. When you think of Sullivan and Ryan you can't blame the fighters of other nationalities for wanting people to think they're Irish.

For instance, Tommy Ryan's real name was Joe Youngs. And most of the other "Irish" fighters this last ten years have been Jews or Greeks or Italians.

Funny thing how habits come down from father to son. It's in the Anglo-Saxon blood to fight with their hands. You don't have to teach a boy to double up his fists. It comes to him natural.

Now, Indians never fight with their fists. You never heard of an Indian boxer. There are lots of Indian ball players and Indian runners, but no Indian prize fighters. When they fight they go at it with knives.

That's why I am a great believer in having boxing taught in the public schools. It's much better to have a boy get a bunch of knuckles in his nose than to get a knife between the ribs. A row that is settled by a square, stand-up fight is better than a fuss settled by clubs and rocks and knives.

As a matter of fact, the better a boy can fight the less he wants to fight.

(Tomorrow Willard will tell how he went to work for an Indian horse breaker).

DIVERS SAW THE BODIES IN F-4

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Gunner C. D. Stillson, in charge of the Brooklyn navy yard's divers who went to Honolulu to help raise the F-4, has returned to Brooklyn, where today he told of the work of the divers who saw the bodies inside the sunken submarine. Stillson was not expected back until July 15, according to his orders, and the few who said they talked with him reported that he had said:

"The men told me that they had seen the bodies of the poor fellows who died inside the submarine. But the bodies were not touched and there was no effort to reach them. The department wants things kept just as they were as much as possible until the F-4 has been raised completely so that every possible bit of evidence as to what caused the trouble will be gained.

DIFFICULT TASK.

"When we got to Honolulu it was a question as to whether the F-4 would ever come to the top again. We found her on a very steep slope her bow pointing in toward the harbor and resting on the bottom so that there was a depth of 288 feet at the bow and 306 feet at the stern.

It was hard enough to go down in that depth and to get the lines on her, but the heavy swell which came in nearly all the time made it all the more difficult. That swell would lift the derricks and the floats with a sudden jerk and then they would go down as though they were going to pull everything to pieces. Some times we couldn't work.

"We had to get lines on the submarine both front and stern. That meant going down 306 feet, a great deal more than many divers had ever gone before. The divers could not stay down very long in that pressure of course and they all made quick, short tricks of it. All four divers did the 306 feet depth and Crilley went down twice. My work was to see that everything went all right with the diving.

RIGHT SIDE UP.

"When the men got to the F-4 there was not any break in her which they could see. Afterward when the chains had lifted her from the bottom the break developed forward of the bow torpedo tube. At first the submarine was right side up but she turned over later.

Stillson's visit to Brooklyn yesterday was said to have been just long enough to allow him to pass upon his belongings before going to his home in Philadelphia.

Walsh Is Deeply Interested in Guild Memorial Plans

Mayor MacDonald of Beverly, secretary of the Curtis Guild Memorial Committee, has received a letter from Governor Walsh, who indorses the movement.

The Governor writes:

I am glad to note by the newspapers that the Guild Memorial Fund has appealed to the generous hearts of those who loved Governor Guild as we were sure it would. To have known Curtis Guild intimately is to possess a treasury of memories that none of us will part with willingly, and I am sure all that is necessary to complete the fund is to let his friends everywhere know of its existence.

Curtis Guild had courage. He was a good soldier. He was a splendid Governor, true to his oath of office, and faithful to the people who elected and loved him. But he was more than a good soldier and splendid Governor.

Perhaps he would not have countenanced such a memorial as we all want to give him, which is strong proof that he is deserving of it. But if he would have permitted it our way is the way he would prefer—a fund raised by the contributions of the many, rather than a monument paid for by municipal or State treasury. I earnestly hope that an amount deemed adequate by the committees may be raised without delay.

German-Italian Baby World Midget

NEW YORK, June 11.—Albert Edward Brun, five days old, born of a German father and an Italian mother, at Clifton, N. J., is said by physicians to be the smallest human being in the world. No record of a smaller could be found yesterday. The baby weighs one pound and fifteen ounces, but can yell as loudly as the average twelve-pound infant and is growing rapidly. Her mother is nineteen and her father thirty-one years.

Lawrence Mills to Reopen.

LAWRENCE, June 11.—The Everett mills, which shut down May 27 on account of a strike among the beamers, will resume operations next Monday.

SIEGEL TO FACE COURT ON MONDAY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 11.—Henry Siegel, bankrupt merchant, whose financial transactions led to his conviction of a misdemeanor, will appear in court in Geneseo, Monday to report to Justice Clark what progress he has made toward making restitution to the depositors in his private bank.

At his trial last Fall Siegel was sentenced to ten months in the Monroe County Penitentiary and fined, but sentence was suspended until the June term in order that he might make good a promise to repay depositors the money used in other of his enterprises.

An offer to pay the depositors $150,000 cash and the balance in stock in a new store corporation to be formed has been made and accepted by a committee of the largest depositors in the bank. This plan will be laid before Justice Clark. In accordance with his agreement Siegel will limit his personal expense to $10,000 a year until the depositors are paid off.

Report on Death of Insane Patient

TAUNTON, June 11.—A committee of the trustees of the Taunton Insane Asylum reported at a meeting of the trustees on the death of William E. Coffin, a patient from Quincy. Coffin died April 13 of multiple injuries inflicted while at the hospital, according to the findings of Judge Frederick E. Austin, who presided at the inquest.

Diver's Body Is Found in Mystic

The body of James Canning, sixty-seven, missing since last Tuesday from the City Home, was found by the Everett police floating in the Mystic River. It is believed he jumped into the water in Charlestown. He was for many years a diver for a building contractor.

MAID AGAIN TO SUE MRS. LOWELL

Maud Birch, the maid whose suit for $10,000 for alleged slander against her former mistress, Mrs. Percival Lowell, resulted in a disagreement of the jury after seven hours deliberation, will reopen her fight at the first opportunity, she announced today.

Miss Birch claimed that she had been unjustly accused of stealing lace, collars, cuffs and other articles of Mrs. Lowell's. After these accusations had first been made, Miss Birch claimed, Mrs. Lowell swore out a warrant for her arrest.

This criminal proceeding was dropped, she claimed, by Mrs. Lowell because she found out her mistake. The former maid also claimed that the confession which was shown to the jury she had signed without reading and because she was forced to.

Take Your Choice of 42 Routes to California

Rock Island Lines have issued a small folder describing in detail the 42 most popular and interesting routes to the California Expositions.

SLAYER WARREN SILENT IN COURT

Charles E. Warren, a Boston chauffeur, appeared in court at East Cambridge today, charged with killing Walter G. Green and shooting Ruby H. Stewart in Newton on June 5. He refused to plead.

After reading the indictment Clerk Ralph Smith said: "What say you? Guilty or not guilty?" Warren bowed his head and made no answer. The clerk repeated the question and even the Judge took a hand, but without success. When court officers tried to get an answer from him he seemed dazed and appeared as if he did not understand what was going on. Judge Sisk ordered a plea of "not guilty" to be entered and Warren was remanded to East Cambridge jail without bail. He was not represented by counsel. It is planned to begin his trial about June 21.

Warren is the jilted suitor of Miss Ruby Stewart, a Newton waitress. On last Saturday he entered the restaurant of Walter G. Green of Newton, where she was employed, and pleaded with the girl to be taken back. On her refusal, he became violent and drew a revolver. When Mr. Green attempted to save the life of his employe, Warren shot him dead and then turned the smoking gun on Miss Stewart. She is still at the Newton Hospital, but will recover.

If Too Fat Get More Fresh Air

Be Moderate in Your Diet and Reduce Your Weight with Oil of Korein.

Lack of fresh air reduces the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart so often becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy, and it cannot be cut anything off by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood is a serious cause of obesity may result.

When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once, don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat.

Stand as much time as you possibly can in the open air, breathe deeply, and get from any druggist a box of Oil of Korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of Korein is absolutely harmless, a pleasure to take, helps the digestion, and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood.

Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight. There is nothing better.

WARNING SOUNDED FOR SANE FOURTH

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The United States Public Health Service, after congratulating the American people on the rapid disappearance of Fourth of July tetanus, announcing the total casualties of the day to be much less than a quarter what they were five years ago, asks, "Why not entirely eliminate the disease this year?"

The blank cartridge wound is the great cause of Fourth of July tetanus. When driven into the tissues the wadding carries with it innumerable bacilli, and the absorption of the poisonous products given off during the growth of these organisms produces the disease.

The bacilli thrive only in the absence of oxygen. It is for this reason that the physician endeavors the wound or inlet and after removing all foreign material, dresses the injury in such a manner that development of the organisms is inhibited.

In order to accomplish this it is usually necessary to administer a general anaesthetic. Anti-tetanic serum is of great value as a prophylactic measure, but it should be given soon after the receipt of the injury. Parents should realize that Fourth of July tetanus is easy to prevent, but extremely difficult to cure.

No blank cartridge wound is too trivial to receive careful medical attention. However slight the injury may appear, summon a physician and at once adopt energetic measures. Reliance upon home treatment may prove disastrous and result in the sacrifice of life.

In 1903, before the widespread recognition of the possibilities of preventive treatment, one case of tetanus developed to every four blank cartridge wounds reported; in 1914, there was but one case to every forty such injuries. This is the measure of the success of preventive treatment.

Directors Named for Boston Y. M. C. A. at Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting of the Boston Y. M. C. A. D. Chauncey Brewer, Henry W. Newhall, J. Bradlee Peters, William E. Murdock and Lewis A. Crossett were elected directors for the year ending June 1918. William C. Chick for the year ending June, 1918 and Thomas M. Russell and Solon P. Sanger for 1917.

The total membership on May 31 in all the branches including the Central, Railroad, Army and College was 8,667, and there were connected with the several branches during the fiscal year 12,552 men and boys.

The directors report the most experienced considerable difficulty in closing the year with the current expenses met, leaving a small balance of $18.52 in the treasury. The total budget for the entire work was $336,702.22. 90 per cent. of which was realized from the work itself, and the balance was received from contributions and a small income from forty endowments.

MRS. DANIEL V. McISAAC

LADIES' CLUB IS PRAISED BY WALSH

Governor Walsh praised the work of the Ladies' Catholic Club Association while addressing the members of the club at the twentieth anniversary celebration at the Copley-Plaza.

Monsignor Splaine, conveyed the blessing of Cardinal O'Connell to the members collectively and individually. It was a source of deep regret to Cardinal O'Connell that he could not be present. Monsignor Splaine declared.

Monsignor Splaine said that a great honor had come to the club in the appointment of Miss Mary A. Barr, president of the association, to a position on the State Board of Charity. He then praised the work of Governor Walsh in charitable affairs.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Daniel V. McIsaac, who sang a group of songs.

The officers of the association are: Honorary President, Miss Mary A. Barr; vice-president, Mrs. James S. Fox; secretary, Mrs. John M. Jackson; treasurer, Mrs. Daniel J. McIsaac.

BOSTON LAWYERS TO AID LEO FRANK

Six prominent Boston attorneys will probably leave for Atlanta today to-morrow before Governor Slaton to plead for the life of Leo M. Frank, who is sentenced to die on June 22 for the murder of Mary Phagan.

Louis R. Eyges, former assistant attorney-general, has signified his intention to appear before the governor on behalf of Frank.

Scores of Massachusetts citizens have sent telegrams to Governor Slaton, in the past few days pleading with him to extend executive clemency and conclude Frank's case.

"The demand of the Prison Board of Georgia, in the Frank case, is to be deeply regretted," declared ex-Governor Bates, one of the signers of the Frank petition.

"The openly expressed opinion of the presiding judge alone is sufficient to justify the granting of a commuted or a new trial given Frank. I am very sure that the present governor of Georgia will consider the sentence. I think that the public in general will be pleased at the commutation of Frank's sentence comes as a shock to me as I labored under the belief that it would have been pronounced in accordance with sound reason. And the decision shows that reason and justice have not yet controlled their minds and their hearts."

Solomon Bergh, vice-president of the Tremont Trust Company.

"Governor Slaton is presented with the great opportunity of his life," says Leon R. Eyges. He now has the right to commute the sentence of Frank, and the law of Georgia gives him the fullest discretion so to do."

COMPLETE TEXT OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S REJOINDER TO GERMANY

Firm Reiteration of Principle; Germany Misinformed, It Says, On the Lusitania.

The complete text of the latest American note to Germany follows:

The Secretary of State ad interim to the American Ambassador at Berlin.

Department of State, WASHINGTON, June 9.

American Ambassador, Berlin:

You are instructed to deliver textually the following note to the minister of foreign affairs:

In compliance with your excellency's request, I did not fail to transmit to my government immediately upon their receipt your note of May 28 in reply to my note of May 15, and your supplementary note of June 1, setting forth the conclusions so far as reached by the imperial German government concerning the attacks on three American steamers Cushing and Gulflight. I am now instructed by my government to communicate the following in reply:

The government of the United States notes with gratification the full recognition by the imperial German government, in discussing the cases of the Cushing and the Gulflight, of the principle of the freedom of all parts of the open sea to neutral ships, and the frank willingness of the imperial German government to acknowledge and meet its liability where the fact of attack upon neutral ships "which have not been guilty of any hostile act" by German aircraft or vessels of war is satisfactorily established; and the government of the United States will in due course lay before the imperial German government, as it requests, full information concerning the attack on the steamer Cushing.

With regard to the sinking of the steamer Falaba, by which an American citizen lost his life, the government of the United States is surprised to find the imperial German government contending that an effort on the part of a merchantman to escape capture and secure assistance alters the obligation of the officers seeking to make the capture in respect of the safety of the lives of those on board the merchantman, although the vessel had ceased her attempt to escape when torpedoed.

These are not new circumstances. They have been in the minds of statesmen and of international jurists throughout the development of naval warfare and the government of the United States does not understand that they have ever been held to alter the principles of humanity upon which it has insisted. Nothing but actual and forcible resistance or continued efforts to escape by flight when ordered to stop for the purpose of visit on the part of the merchantman has ever been held to forfeit the lives of her passengers or crew.

The government of the United States, however, does not understand that the imperial German government is seeking in this case to relieve itself of liability, but only intends to set forth the circumstances which led the commander of the submarine to allow himself to be hurried into the course which he took.

Your excellency's note, in discussing the loss of American lives resulting from the sinking of the steamship Lusitania, adverts at some length to certain information which the imperial German government has received with regard to the character and outfit of that vessel and your excellency expresses the fear that this information may not have been brought to the attention of the United States.

It is stated that the Lusitania undoubtedly was equipped with masked guns, supplied with trained gunners and special ammunition, transporting troops from Canada, carrying a cargo not permitted under the laws of the United States to a vessel also carrying passengers, and serving, in virtual effect, as an auxiliary to the naval forces of Great Britain. Fortunately, these are matters concerning which the government of the United States is in a position to give the imperial German government official information.

Of the facts alleged in your excellency's note, if true, the government of the United States would have been bound to take official cognizance in performing its recognized duty as a neutral power and in enforcing its national laws.

It was its duty to see to it that the Lusitania was not armed for offensive action, that she was not serving as a transport, that she did not carry a cargo prohibited by the statutes of the United States, and that, if in fact she was a naval vessel of Great Britain, she should not receive clearance as a merchantman; and it performed that duty and enforced its statutes with scrupulous vigilance through its regularly constituted officials. It is able, therefore, to assure the imperial German government that it has been misinformed.

If the Imperial German government should deem itself to be in possession of convincing evidence that the officials of the government of the United States did not perform these duties with thoroughness, the government of the United States sincerely hopes that it will submit that evidence for consideration.

Whatever may be the contentions of the imperial German government regarding the carriage of contraband of war on board the Lusitania or regarding the explosion of that material by the torpedo, it need only be said that, in view of this government, these contentions are irrelevant to the question of the legality of the methods used by the German naval authorities in sinking the vessel.

But the sinking of passenger ships involves principles of humanity which throw into the background any special circumstances of detail that may be thought to affect the cases, principles which lift it, as the imperial German government will no doubt be quick to recognize and acknowledge, out of the class of ordinary subjects of diplomatic discussion or of international controversy.

Whatever be the other facts regarding the Lusitania, the principal fact is that a great steamer, primarily and chiefly a conveyance for passengers and carrying more than a thousand souls who had no part or lot in the conduct of the war, was torpedoed and sunk without so much as a challenge or a warning, and that men, women and children were sent to their death in circumstances unparalleled in modern warfare.

The fact that more than 100 American citizens were among those who perished made it the duty of the government of the United States to speak of these things and once more with solemn emphasis to call the attention of the imperial German government to the grave responsibility which the government of the United States conceives that it has incurred in this tragic occurrence, and to the indisputable principle upon which that responsibility rests.

The government of the United States is contending for something much greater than mere rights of property or privileges of commerce. It is contending for nothing less high and sacred than the rights of humanity, which every government honors itself in respecting and which no government is justified in resigning on behalf of those under its care and authority. Only her actual resistance to capture or refusal to stop when ordered to do so for the purpose of visit could have afforded the commander of the submarine any justification for so much as putting the lives of those on board the ship in jeopardy.

This principle the government of the United States understands was the explicit instruction, issued on August 3, 1914 by the imperial German admiralty to its commanders at sea to have recognized and embodied, as do the naval codes of all other nations, and upon it every traveler and seaman had a right to depend. It is upon this principle of humanity as well as upon the law founded upon this principle that the United States must stand.

The government of the United States is happy to observe that your excellency's note closes with the intimation that the imperial German government is willing, now as before, to accept the good offices of the United States in an attempt to come to an understanding with the government of Great Britain by which the character and conditions of war upon the sea may be changed.

The government of the United States would consider it a privilege thus to serve its friends and the world. It stands ready at any time to convey to either government any intimation or suggestion the other may be willing to have it convey, and cordially invites the imperial German government to make use of its services in this way at its convenience. The whole world is concerned in anything that may bring about even a partial accommodation of interests or in any way mitigate the terrors of the present distressing conflict.

In the mean time, whatever arrangement may happily be made between the parties to the war, and whatever may in the opinion of the imperial German government have been the provocation or their circumstantial justification for the past acts of its commanders at sea, the government of the United States confidently looks to see the justice and humanity of the government of Germany vindicated in all cases where Americans have been wronged or their rights invaded.

The government of the United States therefore very earnestly and very solemnly renews the representations of its note transmitted to the imperial German government on the 15th of May, and relies in these representations upon the principles of humanity, the universally recognized understandings of international law and the ancient friendship of the German nation.

The government of the United States cannot admit that the proclamation of a war zone from which neutral ships have been warned to keep away may be made to operate as in any degree an abbreviation of the rights either of American shipmasters or of American citizens bound on lawful errands as passengers on merchant ships of belligerent nationality.

It does not understand the imperial German government to question the principle that the lives of non-combatants cannot lawfully or rightfully be put in jeopardy by the capture or destruction of an unresisting merchantman and to recognize the obligation to take sufficient precaution to ascertain whether a suspected merchantman is in fact of belligerent nationality or is in fact carrying contraband of war under a neutral flag.

The government of the United States, therefore, deems it reasonable to expect that the imperial German government will adopt the measures necessary to put these principles into practice in respect of the safeguarding of American lives and American ships, and ask for assurances that this will be done.

ROBERT LANSING,
Secretary of State Ad Interim.

READY TO ACT FOR NATIONS NOW AT WAR

The government of the United States is happy to observe that your excellency's note closes with the intimation that the Imperial German government is willing, now as before, to accept the good offices of the United States in an attempt to come to an understanding with the government of Great Britain by which the character and conditions of war upon the sea may be changed.

The government of the United States would consider it a privilege thus to serve its friends and the world. It stands ready at any time to convey to either government any intimation or suggestion the other may be willing to have it convey, and cordially invites the Imperial German government to make use of its services in this way at its convenience.

The whole world is concerned in anything that may bring about even a partial accommodation of interests or in any way mitigate the terrors of the present distressing conflict.—From United States note to Germany on the Lusitania.

VARICOSE VEINS ARE QUICKLY REDUCED

No sensible person will continue to suffer from dangerous swollen veins or bunches when the new powerful, yet harmless, germicide called Moone's Emerald Oil can readily be obtained at any well stocked drug store.

Ask for a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse substitutes. Use as directed and in a few days improvement will be noticed, then continue until the swollen veins are reduced to normal. It is guaranteed and is so powerful that it also reduces enlarged glands, carbuncles, goitres and sores. Generous sample by mail for 10 cents from Moone Chemical Co., Rochester, N. Y.

IF YOUR GUMS ARE SORE,

soft or spongy or your teeth loose and sensitive get a small original bottle of Gingivol at any good drug store. It is a safe and sure treatment for Pyorrhea and Riggs disease and will last for weeks.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

ONLY 22 DAYS To Win Tours

By Wednesday next, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, all coupons of Series "E" must be sent in. If mailed, they must bear a postmark not later than 5 o'clock p. m. on that day. None will be accepted if brought or mailed after that hour.

Do you realize that three weeks from today the American's California Tours Contest will come to an end? Just three weeks more of concentrated effort, of unremitting energy in the matter of gathering the vote coupons and twenty-five readers of this newspaper will be entitled to a trip from Boston to the Pacific Coast and the Expositions that will be the big event in their lives.

Don't stop now to wonder whether you are going to be one of the fortunate ones who will start on July 24 for the far West, as the guest of this newspaper, but devote all your spare time to accumulating the greatest possible number of coupons.

NOW is the time to do all you can. A little effort NOW may mean SUCCESS in twenty-two days more. DOUBLE your vote-gathering efforts and insure for yourself a place on the American's DE LUXE train to California and the Expositions.

TODAY is the time for action. EVERY DAY, from now until July 3, should be a day of action, of accomplishment, of increased vote totals.

Some twenty-five among you, candidates, are going to take this remarkable tour. It might just as well be you as one of your competitors.

PEACE SOCIETY DENIES RUPTURE

Peacetalks in the Massachusetts Peace Society, any reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

In consequence of the small boy [illegible] the society was [illegible]

The death of a resolution offered by Rev Burke I. Dole of Dover, [illegible] at said meeting, voted [illegible] was agreed to after [illegible] had been presented [illegible] Dole's three opponents were denied [illegible] of error on the part [illegible]

The matter was also referred to a committee consisting [illegible] Elder to suggest a program [illegible] the society. But [illegible] one of Mr Elder [illegible] the date of the [illegible] had nothing to do with [illegible] Mr Elder said today.

"I received more than two months ago from the president [illegible] the directors that the pressure of other [illegible] me to take the [illegible] act on the differences of opinion [illegible] over the question [illegible] said Dr. F. Dole has nothing [illegible] ever to with the [illegible] and I hope this clear. I have a [illegible] some [illegible] upon the [illegible] of directors [illegible] to settle [illegible] I have resigned [illegible] account [illegible] of [illegible]

ILLNESS DENIED.

[illegible] Hoskins secretary of the society, [illegible] asked [illegible] whether the [illegible] report [illegible] ill, feeling [illegible] the [illegible] "He said

"We [illegible] most harmonious meeting [illegible] Saturday, where the [illegible] were [illegible] in the last few months [illegible] fifty members [illegible] and we have now about [illegible] all.

"The [illegible] of [illegible] brought out no [illegible] at the close of the meeting. The sentiment was the best [illegible] and the majority of the [illegible] present thought [illegible] inadvisable [illegible] President's [illegible] resolution [illegible] and [illegible] adopted [illegible] to put out [illegible] resolution [illegible] Dole [illegible] seized.

"The intention [illegible] resolution was [illegible] was not [illegible] and [illegible] impression that the Massachusetts Peace Society [illegible] in no sense [illegible] We hope [illegible] to promote peace [illegible] world and we know that [illegible] peace in our meetings."

BRYAN MAY TO BE PRESIDENT.

Professor J. William Hudson [illegible] a letter for the society said: "I attended the meeting and this [illegible] different [illegible] of opinion was so small that it has been greatly overrated. It was one of the best meetings of the society and showed deep interest in the work and development of peace sentiment.

"You can rest assured that the Massachusetts Peace Society not only favors earnest, [illegible] the world over, but pursues it in the various [illegible] and [illegible] We are [illegible] enough to have different opinions [illegible] but we act united under a battery of [illegible] and are working earnestly for it. Much more [illegible] coming."

Blisaferry will be elected to succeed & Elder as president of the society at the next meeting, to be held two weeks [illegible]

LASELL STUDENT GIVES HER PRIZE RECIPE FOR BREAD

Miss Elizabeth Hildreth, who won a gold trophy at Lasell Seminary for being the best bread maker in the school.

1 cup of milk
½ yeast cake
3 cups of flour
1 teaspoonful of sugar.
½ teaspoonful of salt.
1 teaspoonful of lard.

Bake from 30 to 40 minutes in a rather quick oven. Quantity is sufficient for one moderate sized loaf.

BE SUITED

Extreme Values In Blue Serges

At $12.50 to $30

Our Blue Serge stock is a big one. It has to be to take care of the thousands who come to us each season for an unusually big money's worth in Blue Serge Suits.

We can't say that any particular Blue Serge here is better value at the price than any other, but we call particular attention to two in which our greater value-giving is so pronounced that one can fail to see and appreciate it.

$15 Serges

This is the only store in Boston where you can get as good Blue Serges as these at this price. Such fine, pure worsted, fast color fabrics and such good tailoring as these suits exhibit are found only at $18 and $20 in ordinary stores. Two models—one with regular and the other with patch pockets.

$25 Serges

Here are two wonderful values—both from The House of Kuppenheimer. One a conservative Chester model, full lined; the other a "featherweight," Biltmore model, made from as beautiful and finely woven unfinished serge as you ever saw, both coat and vest skeleton lined with silk, seams piped with silk and sleeves silk lined. Tailored with all the nicety for which Kuppenheimer is famous.

Boys' Blue Serge Suits

For Graduation

An exceptional value, even in this store of greater value-giving, is the Kennedy Special Suits which we are selling so fast at $6.50

Others at $5 to $10.50.

When a Man Goes to the Extreme and Says "We Will Win" He Must Have Confidence

NEWS WRITTEN BY LEADING EXPERTS

M'LEAN FAVORS GALLANT TO WIN

By JACK CONWAY.

"GILBERT GALLANT will defeat Ad Wolgast in their twelve round bout which will be staged at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The Chelsea lightweight will then be ready to battle Charley White of Chicago. I am confident that Gallant should have a grand chance to dispose of Nate Lewis' hard hitting protege."

Alex McLean was talking. There are few men who are better judges of a boxer's ability than McLean. It will be remembered that it was the Revere man who first realized that Jack Johnson possessed championship ability. He also was a prominent factor in piloting Sandy Ferguson, Matty Baldwin, Dave Deshler, and several other husky glove men to victories within the hemp ropes. Therefore McLean's remarks must be given due consideration.

"I do not believe that Gallant has a great deal to fear from either Wolgast or White," continued McLean. "They are both great fighters, but so is Gallant."

"GALLANT and Wolgast should put up a furious tussle. There are few boxers who keep as busy as Wolgast while in the ring. He is an aggressive, two handed scrapper and is always forcing the issue. He is able to punch hard with each hand. Consequently his opponent is liable to hit the canvas at any time.

"Wolgast fought Leach Cross in New York the other night. Cross won, but he knew that he was in a real fight before all had been said and done. It was an even fight for seven rounds, but Cross was stronger than his opponent and gained an advantage during the closing frame. Ad proved that he still possesses a winning punch as he knocked Cross down for the count of nine in the seventh frame.

"In his bout with "Young" White Appleton, Wis., Wednesday night, in Cadillac "Wildcat" again proved that he is still able to score with a ream smash. White is a rugged boxer, but Wolgast stopped him in seven stanzas.

"BUT regardless of all this I believe that Gallant will win next Tuesday night. I think that the Chelsea boy can hit harder than Wolgast, also had considerable ring experience and proved that a boxer with a reputation does not frighten when his won two straight victories over Leach Cross and beated Jim Robideau after the latter had knocked him out.

"Wolgast is aggressive, but this the kind of boxer that Gallant likes to meet. "Ad" will meet Gallant more than half way. Consequently there should be plenty of action worked into the twelve sessions provided that one of the men does not score a knockout blow inside of the limit. I believe that Gallant's skill and wonderful strength will enable him to keep fighting at top speed all of the time and this ability should gain for him the decision.

"IF Gallant beats Wolgast, I may match him with Charley White. White is a great fighter, but he is not unbeatable. In his tussle with Cross, he had hard sledding. Freddy Welsh, the world's lightweight champion, said that Cross won. Everybody now knows what Gallant did to Cross.

"Cross is liable to knock out any man whom he can hit flush on the jaw, but I do not believe he would be able to hit Gallant. White is slow and is not very aggressive. This would give Gallant an advantage as he possesses a swift left hand punch and does his best fighting at close quarters. White was able to "set" for his punches in his contests with Murphy, Yelle and Thomas. He would have to fight carefully if he opposed Gallant as the latter would be dangerous at all times and might catch a careless White to the mat with a well directed left hand smash. Gallant knocked Cross down and there is not any reason why he should not repeat such a feat if pitted against White."

Report Newark Club Transfer to New London

NEW LONDON, June 11—It is reported here today that the Newark International League baseball club will be transferred to this city at an early date.

Commodore M. F. Plant, who backed the local Eastern Association pennant winner last season, is reported as the financer of the Newark club here. Commodore Plant had retired before he could be interviewed on the subject.

Eugene McCann, who was manager of Mr. Plant's Eastern club last season, returned from New York and immediately after his arrival a report was current that the Newark club will soon be shifted to this city.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the sixth of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The earth was made round and reasonably flat at the same time, in order to prompt us to move about over it; and the first independent change of place which the body accomplishes is by putting forth legs (created for the purpose) and walking.

Walking, therefore, is the first exercise, and almost everybody does it more or less, including even the Tottering Lilies of Fascination of the Celestial Empire. But these ladies do not do it well; and what is more to the purpose, hardly anybody else does either. There is a right way of walking—there are two or three right ways in fact —and there are almost as many wrong ways as there are individuals who practice them.

I could write a volume on nothing but walking, for it is an achievement at least as difficult to describe as to perform. The way a man walks reveals his temperament and character, even when he walks correctly; even a clumsy style of walking is better than none at all—that is, than riding in a trolley car or automobile. And walking is an outdoor exercise; and it may be taken as a general rule that exercise done in open air is worth twice as much for health and vigor as is the same thing done indoors.

Walking, too, involves deep breathing, or at least it offers the best opportunity for it. Inhale the air gradually during your first six steps, and exhale during the next six, and keep that up till you reach your destination. When you exhale do it forcibly, in a kind of whispering cough, expelling the last cubic inch of air from your lungs; and when you inhale, you will spontaneously take in all you can to fill the emptiness. In other words, learn to breathe in deep by breathing out hard.

When you walk, hold your body as already directed, feeling the edge of your collar against the back of your neck, drawing in the abdomen, and maintaining a certain tension and prominence in the chest. Remember especially to keep the waist lifted upward—never let it settle down toward the hip bones. Take fairly long steps—long for your height and length of limb, and be conscious of a tension of the leg muscles, both front and back, at every step. As you bring your rear leg forward, press on the ground with the ball of that foot, giving a slight spring to your gait, to make the calf muscle feel that it is doing its proper work. Let your arms swing naturally, but not excessively; let the sensation be that your body is urging itself forward and carrying the legs with it—not that your legs are carrying along the body by their own initiative or volition. Don't for get that the body is always the main thing to be considered in exercise, and that the arms and legs are the body's servants, and have no independent rights of their own.

Ordinary walking and fast walking are two different things. The extreme rate for ordinary walking is five, or in special cases, six miles an hour. To go faster than that, you must alter the style. But I must tell of these matters on some future occasion. Meanwhile, as a preliminary to general exercise, you cannot do better than to walk every day five or six miles an hour, breathing deep all the way, and holding yourself well up. Then rub down, and read the next lesson.

Eleonora Sears Is Sensation of Tennis Tourney

PHILADELPHIA, June 11—Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston furnished the sensation of the week in the lawn tennis tournament for the women's national championship here when she forced Mrs. George Wightman, nee Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, who was champion in 1909, 1910 and 1911, to three sets in the fifth round.

Mrs. Wightman pulled out victorious only by playing brilliant tennis with the set scores at 6—3, 6—7, 6—4.

The others who were successful in the fifth round were Miss Molla Bjurstedt, champion of Norway, holder of the national indoor and metropolitan titles; Miss Martha Guthrie of Pittsburgh and Miss Elida Fox of the Germantown Cricket Club. The last named was the only player who had a really easy time winning her match.

Frankie Mack Seeks Bout at Atlas A. A.

Leo Flynn, manager of Frankie Mack, has come to bat with another lengthy statement in which he says a few choice words about the Eastern lightweights who have been avoiding Mack with his protege. Mack has been doing some swell work in the ring and Flynn is confident that he would be able to make things interesting for the best of the 133-pound glove men.

Flynn is anxious to stage Mack for a match to be staged at the Atlas A. A. Beachmont boy has a big following in these parts and would be a card at the box office if pitted against a high class performer.

Powers Hot After Go with Flemming

Dave Powers, Malden's scrap-headed featherweight, today hurled a challenge at "Wild Bill" Flemming. Powers has already one victory to his credit over Flemming, according to Fred Nolan, his manager, and he is anxious to again dispose of the Blue Echer.

Just now David is preparing for a little eight-round meeting which he will have with George Alger of Cambridge at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night.

Tigers and Cornell to Play for Title

Princeton and Cornell will play off the tie in the intercollegiate team tennis championship on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills, L. I. The agreement to settle the tie on neutral courts was made by George M. Church, the Princeton captain, and R. L. Cullen, manager of the Cornell team. They conferred with Julian S. Myrick, president of the West Side Club, and the championship was scheduled for Friday morning. Captain Beston will lead the Cornell forces.

BIG PARADE TO BE JUNE 17 FEATURE

Charlestown will celebrate the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill on June 17, with banquets, fireworks, band concerts, open house, and a military and naval parade on the afternoon of the holiday.

It is expected that 1,500 Shipjacks and marines from the third division of the Atlantic fleet now off the Charlestown Navy Yard, will march.

A large turnout of the Coast Artillery attached to the harbor forts has been ordered to participate.

Patrick J. Healy, secretary of the Hayes Square Outing Club, will be the chief marshal of the parade, and Lieutenant Andrew J. Wilson will again act as chief of staff.

The exercises will be held with the anniversary service of the Bunker Hill Chapter, D. A. R., in commemoration of the battle of Bunker Hill in the yard square, Charlestown, Sunday afternoon.

The next exercises will be held at 6 o'clock on the night before the holiday at the Bunker Hill Monument, conducted by King Solomon Lodge of Masons.

Three banquets will be held in various halls throughout the district on Wednesday evening, at which men prominent in nation, State and city affairs will be present to deliver addresses.

Former Congressman Martin W. Littleton of New York will be the orator at the banquet of the Hayes Square Outing Club, to be held in Charlestown High School.

The banquet of St. Mary's Holy Name Club will be held in the clothing house on Winthrop street. Ex-John Duff will be the principal speaker. O'Connell has been extended an invitation to be present.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were strong and active at the opening in Boston and New York, the effect of President Wilson's note to Germany being reassuring. Many traders had expected it would be bellicose in tone. As far as speculation is concerned it served as a bullish document. There were other favorable factors. The report of the U. S. Steel Corporation for May was exceptionally good showing, and a better one is expected for this month. It is said that it is receiving orders at the rate of 40,000 tons a day. The copper, lead and zinc trade are booming, iron prospects continue good and never has there been so much available money in the country. The first three January 1 gold brought into this country totals $45,000,000. Americans were strong in London where Parliament opened on this side. This was due to the favorable impression that is now they're forecasting, it appears the character of the administration at Washington towards Germany.

Hill Says U. S. Must Soon Feed 400 Million

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 11—Members of the Peoria, Ill., Association of Commerce were treated to a talk by J. J. Hill and Archbishop Ireland. Mr. Hill sounded to the people of the grain producing States a timely warning, which, he said, would also apply to Minnesota, that before the end of the century, the United States should contain a population of 400,000,000. "Conservation of our resources and proper cultivation of the soil is necessary if we are to be prepared to feed this great multitude," he said.

TOOMEY DEMANDS LOAN FOR STREETS

John J. Toomey, president of the Trade Association of South Boston, and a fervent fighter for civic betterment, today supports the AMERICAN'S campaign for better streets in Boston. He urges immediate street improvements, and says:

By JOHN J. TOOMEY.

South Boston streets are really in a deplorable condition. It is disputing it mildly. For years in terms of the city proper, and in this town, back into the history, even much worse than those in South Boston, and worthy of prior consideration.

There is nothing more talked about by business visitors to our city, while they are here and after they have returned to their home town, than their observations of our thoroughfares. Almost all of them make the comment upon those splendid streets, "those Boston streets," and "those fine thoroughfares" when expressing their views; and it is to be regretted that there is so much truth in the observations. Then, too, we have the worst paved streets in any city of its size in the country. Even from the bridge to the Colony avenue, on Broadway, especially in the residential section of Congress street would profitably be reconstructed.

If one were to make a choice of the streets of our city most in need of repair, Broadway, Dorchester and common sense would demand the choice therein of Broadway, Dorchester and particularly the city proper.

Next to business streets as Washington, Tremont, Summer and Washington, are in bad condition because more in use and in bad condition.

Next, the Back Bay streets, where the people, including visitors, have the opportunity to observe and higher in the Boston market.

Among gains here were Alloues 3, Copper Range ⅜, Osceola 1, Mohawk ¼, U. S. Smelting ⅛, Arcadian ¼, Butte & Superior, ex-dividend, 1¾, Alaska Gold ⅛, United Fruit and Shoe Machinery ¼.

WAR AND LIFE POLICIES.

A local financial publication says that leading American companies are preparing to issue war risk policies. All new life insurance policies "The New York Life, the Mutual Life and the Equitable Life, have already agreed on a new form of policy which will shortly be issued exclusively in writing life insurance in this country. The war clause will provide for a very much higher rate in case the insured enlists for war. It is likely that the cash surrender and loan value provisions will be the same, excepting where the insured borrows on his policy, the principal and paying premiums. One form of war clause under discussion by the companies is that in case the insured goes to war, his premiums with interest shall be refunded by the company and paid to the beneficiary."

PUBLIC NECESSITY URGED.

There have been many reasons set forth why a bond issue should be thus obtained, and immediately, and one of the most forceful of these are generally opposed to the proposition is the fact that the city's necessity is one of the best arguments that can be advanced for the issuance of bonds. It has never yet been disputed that there is a great public necessity in the preference of opinion being on the method of raising the money.

Would it be unconstitutional? Can anyone justly doubt this reason for the issuance of bonds, that the city of Boston paid out in the municipal year of 1914-1915 $16,000 and a fraction for claims for vehicles breaking down in the streets and falling in the excavations, and realizing that this would be saved if the streets were in proper condition and maintained in accordance of such accidents, for which the city is liable? Would the saving of $500,000 would not be over $16,000 and if the method proved an expenditure of $35,000 for damage claims, is it not more than economy to spend $500,000 in commendable saving of $19,000 to the city?

All the people are to be considered in the solution of this problem, and not the few alone for the sake of ideal government, that the members of the City Council who have been in consultation to the borrowing of $500,000 for repairing the streets, will bear in mind their first and foremost duty, that of the welfare of the people.

South Boston and the Back Bay, Charlestown and Roxbury are in need of street improvements. Will the representatives in the City Government persistently refuse their consent?

COUNCIL COMMITTEE TO ACT ON $500,000 LOAN ORDER TODAY

Mayor Curley has begun to get ready for his trip to the Panama Exposition, and this is taken as a token by his confidential friends that Council will soon pass the order providing for the creation of a $500,000 loan order to provide for the repair of Boston's streets. The Mayor has asked that the loan order on his trip until this order did pass.

The matter will probably be considered in the committee on finance of the City Council today, and it is generally believed that City Hall that this committee will return the loan order favorably with the recommendation, "ought to pass."

Mock Wedding Becomes Real One

DANVILLE, Ill., June 11.—Actors in a mock wedding at Hoopeston, for the benefit of the Red Cross, were surprised when the rehearsal was turned into a real wedding.

Miss Lucile Bunting, the young woman to be the bride in the mock wedding, had just reached the front room with the "bridegroom," another young woman in man's clothes, when Phil Pyle stepped quickly between the "bridegroom" aside and took her hand. When the ceremony was over the spectators realized they had attended a real wedding.

Our Rights, All Our Rights and Nothing But Our Rights

THE ADMINISTRATION'S second note to Germany is notable for its self-restraint and pacificatory tone—which is to say, it is notable for its sanity.

President Wilson has neither forced a quarrel upon a nation desirous of remaining friendly, nor has he withdrawn any demands which the United States had a recognized right to present.

From the beginning of this controversy the AMERICAN has insisted that our Government should stand for Our Rights, All Our Rights and Nothing But Our Rights.

In the main this note, the first to be signed by Acting Secretary of State Robert Lansing, conforms to this principle.

The AMERICAN has urged that the note should be pacificatory in tone.

In fact it is eminently so.

The AMERICAN has insisted that there were matters involved in the case of the Lusitania that could not be determined offhand by the dictum of the United States, but must be left for future discussion.

The note in fact opens the way for further consideration of every mooted point.

The AMERICAN protested against anything that should savor of an ultimatum.

The note invites "assurances," but does not close the door upon arguments. Nothing further removed from an ultimatum in tone or substance could be imagined.

The New York American said yesterday:

It is announced on behalf of the administration that the note on its way to Germany "by no means closes the way to ending the question by peaceful means."

We hope this is true. It certainly ought to be true. It would be one of the great crimes of history for any note to be indited by the United States which would close the doors to peaceful negotiations over a question of national rights upon which even loyal Americans hold two opinions.

It is unjust for the United States to demand of Germany the surrender of her right to prosecute her war upon the ocean in the only way left to her. But that the refusal of Germany to make this tremendous concession should be even thought of as a cause for our declaring war ought to be unthinkable.

It is quite obvious that this note is not at all what Mr. Bryan's action seemed to suggest.

It is equally obvious that it opens the way to temperate discussion of all points at issue.

It employs no word or phrase that can be construed as a peremptory demand that Germany abandon at once and for all her submarine attacks upon the commerce of the allies.

On this subject the note merely seeks to suggest the more humane and generally accepted methods of such attack.

On the contrary, the paragraph which touches upon the vexed question of the "war zone" does so with such tactful suggestion of German good faith that it may well be quoted as illustrative of the conciliatory phraseology of the whole:

"The government of the United States cannot admit that the proclamation of a war zone from which neutral ships have been warned to keep away may be made to operate as in any degree an abbreviation of the rights either of American shipmasters or of American citizens bound on lawful errands as passengers on merchant ships of belligerent nationality. It does not understand the Imperial German Government to question those rights. It understands it, also, to accept as established beyond question the principle that the lives of non-combatants cannot lawfully or rightfully be put in jeopardy by the capture or destruction of an unresisting merchantman, and to recognize the obligation to take sufficient precautions to ascertain whether a suspected merchantman is in fact of belligerent nationality or is in fact carrying contraband of war under a neutral flag."

That this paragraph should be followed by a request that Germany give assurances that her position is as understood by the United States is but reasonable. In connection with the reference to the representations made in the note of May 15, it seems to constitute a milder restatement of the case in a way that may offer a graceful method of retiring from those paragraphs of the first note that were harsh in verbiage and untenable in purpose.

It is notable, however, that President Wilson once more bases his contention upon the broad ground of humanity. Of the original demands made by the United States he says that this Government

"relies in these representations upon the principles of humanity, the universally recognized understandings of international law, and the ancient friendship of the German nation."

We yield to no one, not even to the President, in our devotion to the principle of humanity.

It is in the service of humanity that the AMERICAN has fought against such a presentation of the American case as would provoke war—for war is the negation of all humanity.

The President is right to protest in the name of humanity against all the inhumane acts of this war—not against only a few which have impressed themselves especially upon his consciousness.

But he must remember that when we intervene diplomatically we must have the rights recognized and stated by international law in mind.

Every day, every hour in this savage war the principles of humanity are being violated by every participant. This is the deplorable fact that exists and which the people of the United States would gladly do away with if they could. But in moving effectively as a government to prevent such acts we must have a recognized right to intervene. Our action must be based upon defined and accepted principles of international law.

If we confine ourselves to these recognized rights, and seek to defend only our rights as neutrals, we may, and probably will, establish ourselves in such a position of justice and authority that we may hope eventually to help materially in bringing this war and all its inhumanity to a conclusion.

But if we take an extreme, a biased, or in any way unjustifiable position, we shall only be regarded as a partisan, and not as an unprejudiced arbitrator.

Apparently the Administration policy is not far from the program outlined by Mr. Hearst in this signed editorial:

"LET US STAND FIRMLY IN DEFENCE OF OUR JUST RIGHTS, EVEN THOUGH WE MUST MAINTAIN THEM BY FORCE OF ARMS, BUT LET US NOT PRECIPITATE THE COUNTRY INTO AN UNNECESSARY WAR BY GOING BEYOND OUR OWN RIGHTS AND DEMANDING THE PRIVILEGE OF DICTATING TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES IN MATTERS WHICH HAVE NOT YET RECEIVED THE DEFINITION AND SANCTION OF INTERNATIONAL LAW."

Our just rights are not difficult of statement. So far as rights at sea are concerned they are succinctly set forth thus in the same editorial:

"We cannot require that German submarines shall cease to attack British ships or French ships or Italian ships, but we can demand, and stand ready to enforce the demand, that German submarines cease to attack American ships."

But prior to that time the AMERICAN thus sharply defined the limitations upon the United States' right of interference:

"We have a right, and it is our duty, to question Germany forcibly and with determination in regard to the attack upon the Gulflight, in regard to the attack upon the Cushing, in regard to the avowed policy of sinking merchantmen in the war zone around the British Isles without proper investigation of their nationality.

"These are questions in which Americans are interested—profoundly, anxiously, vitally interested.

"But we have no right to question GERMANY'S USE OF SUBMARINES IN HER WARFARE UPON BRITISH COMMERCE.

"It is no possible business of ours whether Germany sinks British ships with torpedoes, with mines or with gunfire.

"These are not matters between America and Germany, but SOLELY MATTERS BETWEEN GERMANY AND GREAT BRITAIN."

The President's note of yesterday leaves the Administration in a position—if it chooses to take it—of basing its future contentions purely upon these absolutely defensible and tenable rights. To that extent the President is to be congratulated. And if he will maintain that position in the future both the President and the country will be doubly fortunate.

Mr. Bryan, whose precipitate retreat from the Cabinet was supposed to portend a peculiarly intemperate and provocative note, is left in a most embarrassing position. How it could have been possible for him to sign the first note, which was threatening, and refuse to sign the second, which was mollifying, must ever remain a mystery.

The American people ought now to be able to look forward to the proper assertion of the rightful demands of the nation instead of the extreme and unreasonable demands of the original note, now delicately set over, if not indeed fully eliminated.

With such a statement of our case which shall assert Our Neutral Rights, All Our Neutral Rights and Nothing But Our Neutral Rights, we may expect a peaceful and just settlement of the pending questions.

The German nation, for its part, must realize that such a note as this second note embodies and expresses the united sentiment of the American people and will be maintained by every man of our citizenship.
